

Free, Fast & Easy: A new way to communicate benefits to employees

This post is sponsored by Aflac.

We know that as a small business owner, you have your hands full. Aflac has made it easier for you to communicate with your employees about their benefits with the new online Employee Communications Toolkit that has customizable messaging tools.

Whether you communicate via intranet, newsletter or magazine, the Employee Communications Toolkit gives you ready-to-publish communications materials that you can customize for your business. Easy to use, the Toolkit has a variety of articles, personal emails and bulletin board items you can share with employees.

Simply add your company logo to one of the posters, email templates, newsletters, or table tents, and you're on your way to a well-communicated benefits program.